LETTER OF TRANSMITTAL.

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
CENSUS OFFICE,
WASHINGTON, D. C., December 12, 1894.

SIR:

I have the honor to transmit herewith the Report on Manufactures, Part I, consisting of totals for all classes of mechanical and manufacturing industries in the United States, with special statistics for selected industries. The compilation of these statistics was commenced by Mr. F. R. Williams, special agent, and Mr. George S. Boudinot, chief of the division of manufactures. Mr. Boudinot severed his connection with the work October 8, 1891, and Mr. Williams, October 4, 1893. The tabulations and the preparation of the text were conducted by Mr. William M. Steuart, chief of division.

I am, very respectfully, your obedient servant,

CARROLL D. WRIGHT,
Commissioner of Labor in charge.

Hon. HOKE SMITH,
Secretary of the Interior.

INTRODUCTION.

This volume presents the statistics of the manufacturing and mechanical industries of the United States according to the census of 1890. The statistics are shown by totals for the United States, for the respective states and territories, and for specified industries, and are compared with similar statistics published at previous censuses. With the exception of mining and quarrying, which are shown in the report on "Mineral Industries", the tables include every establishment of manufacturing and mechanical industry returned at the Eleventh Census as having a product valued at $500 or more, during the census year ending May 31, 1890. So far as practicable, the operations of each establishment have been credited to the locality in which the works were situated. When two or more establishments owned by the same corporation, firm, or individual are located in the same county or city and engaged in the same industry they have been tabulated and counted as one establishment.

Enumerators appointed under the provisions of the act of Congress approved March 1, 1889, providing for taking the Eleventh Census, were charged with the duty of personally visiting every establishment of productive industry in their respective districts (with certain exceptions hereafter noted), to obtain a distinct report from each establishment while engaged in the work of enumerating the population and the products of agriculture. The law required this work to be completed in 30 days.

By virtue of the authority conferred by section 18 of the same act, the collection of statistics of productive industry in 1,042 cities was withdrawn from the enumerators and assigned to special agents, who entered upon duty as soon as practicable after the completion of the count of the people.

The instructions issued by this office to enumerators and special agents with respect to the collection of statistics of manufactures were in part as follows:

> It shall be their duty to visit personally every establishment of productive industry in their respective districts (except as noted) and to obtain the required information in the case of each manufacturing establishment.
> The term "establishment of productive industry" must be understood in its broadest sense to embrace not only mills and factories but also the operations of all small establishments and the mechanical trades.
>
> Restaurants, saloons, barber shops, the compounding of individual prescriptions by druggists and apothecaries, the operation of mercantile establishments, transportation corporations and lines, and professional services (except mechanical dentistry) are not considered as coming within the meaning of the law in this connection.
> Great care must be taken by special agents and enumerators to guard against the omission from their returns of any establishment that comes properly within the scope of this investigation. They should have their eyes open to every indication of the presence of productive industry, and should supplement personal observation by frequent and persistent inquiry.

A large number of returns were received from dentists. These returns purported to represent only the mechanical work, but it was evident that in many cases operative dentistry had been included. This fact, combined with the strenuous objection on the part of the profession to give any information whatever of the character required by the census schedule, on the ground that the census law did not seek to secure returns for professional services, caused the office to discontinue its efforts to obtain returns for the mechanical work. The statistics published are those which were secured prior to the objection referred to.

It was found impracticable to make a complete canvass of the United States for the collection of statistics pertaining to the generation of electricity for lighting and power purposes. The data concerning this industry, therefore, are confined to the state of New York, the city of St. Louis, Mo., and the District of Columbia.

In some cases the office experienced difficulty in securing complete returns, and it was found necessary to close the canvass without obtaining such returns from some establishments. The establishments referred to, with but few exceptions, are unimportant, and their omission from the tables can have but slight effect on the totals. In cases where the totals show a decrease when compared with the reports of the Tenth Census a special investigation, when practicable, was made to verify the accuracy of the canvass. In the rural districts, where the canvass was conducted by the general enumerators, such a verification was impossible. The law required the work of the enumerators to be completed within 30 days. Under these circumstances the canvass of the cities was more thorough than that of the rural districts, and the apparent decrease in some industries and in some states is due, in part at least, to the less efficient canvass by the general enumerators. The defective canvass of the enumerators is more apparent in the totals for the states in which there are comparatively few large cities, such as Nevada, or for industries conducted largely by establishments located in the rural districts, of which "Leather, tanned and curried" is an example.

COMPARISONS.

In comparing the industrial statistics of 1890 with those published at previous censuses, it should be remembered that changes have been made in both the form and the scope of the inquiry adopted at the Eleventh Census as compared with inquiries used at prior censuses.

The great increase shown in the statistics for industries known as "hand trades" is largely due to the fact that no previous census has obtained so complete a report regarding such industries as masonry, carpentering, blacksmithing, cooperage, painting, plumbing, and similar trades using machinery to a limited extent.

The census inquiry of 1880 omitted the following industries: bottling; cars and general shop construction and repairs by steam railroad companies; china, decorating; clothing, women's, dressmaking; coffins and burial cases, trimming and finishing; cotton, cleaning and rehandling; cotton, ginning; cotton waste; drug grinding; druggists' preparations, not including prescriptions; gas, illuminating and heating; hay and straw, baling; millinery, custom work. Petroleum, refining, formed part of a separate report for the census of 1880, and the statistics were not included in the report on manufactures. For the census of 1880 "Mixed textiles" appeared as a distinct classification, but the data were largely duplicated under other heads of textile manufacture. The inclusion of the above industries at the Eleventh Census renders it impracticable to use the total for 1890 as a basis of comparison with the totals reported at previous censuses.

The values reported in 1870 were expressed in a currency which was at a great discount for gold. The average premium on gold during the 12 months ending May 31, 1870, which constituted the census year, was about one-fourth (25.3 per cent). A premium on gold of one-fourth is equal to a discount on currency of one-fifth. For purposes of comparison, therefore, the values of 1870 should be reduced in that ratio.

The individual returns were classified at the census of 1890 according to the product of chief value, and some of the differences which will appear upon comparison of the data with corresponding classes reported at the census of 1880 are due to changes in classification. For instance, an establishment engaged in the manufacture of "Iron and steel" in 1880 was classified as "Iron and steel", irrespective of the character of the finished product. If such an establishment in 1890 manufactured nails as a finished product of chief value it was assigned to the class of "Iron and steel, nails and spikes, cut and wrought, including wire nails", in the general tables (in Part I), and would also be included in the totals for "Iron and steel manufactures", shown in the special report (in Part III).

In 1880 the total value of products for "Iron nails and spikes, cut and wrought", was $5,629,240, but in the special report on "Iron and Steel" the value of cut nails alone is given as $16,295,300. The $5,629,240, therefore, can not be considered as representing the value of product for the nail industry during the census year of 1880. In 1890 the total value of product, $34,227,517, shown for the same industry reported under the class of "Iron and steel, nails and spikes, cut and wrought, including wire nails", includes the establishments shown in the special report on "Iron and Steel Manufacture" (Part III), as manufacturing nails, provided nails constituted the product of chief value.

The classifications of industries in 1880 and 1890 were not identical, some classes shown in 1880 were subdivided, some consolidated, and the phraseology of others was changed in 1890. In order to compare similar industries reported at the two censuses, the necessary changes and combinations, when possible, have been made in the classifications and figures for the different censuses shown in Tables 1 and 2.

Great care has been exercised in assigning the individual returns to the different classes, and copious cross references are made in the case of those general classes whose minor products are common to each other. When different branches of the same industry follow immediately in alphabetical order, the cross references have been omitted.

While there may appear a given number of establishments in a certain industry, it does not follow that the articles covered by that class are not manufactured by establishments included in other classes. The making of shirts, for instance, is shown as a separate branch of industry; but some establishments classed as "Furnishing goods, men's", and "Clothing, men's", also make shirts. Some of the establishments classed as "Shirts" also manufacture articles classed as "Furnishing goods, men's". Therefore the figures given under the classification of "Shirts" can not be considered as representing all the shirts made in manufacturing establishments during the year, nor should they be considered as representing establishments that manufacture only shirts.

The classification "Iron and steel" must not be considered as representing all of the establishments engaged in manufacturing iron and steel. Some establishments that manufacture iron and steel continue the manipulation of the metal until more highly finished products, such as wire nails and spikes, bolts, nuts, and rivets, are produced. The returns for such establishments are classified according to their finished products, some of them being assigned to the class "Iron and steel, nails and spikes, cut and wrought, including wire nails", others to "Wire", while others may be assigned to "Cotton ties". In the special report on "Iron and Steel Manufacture", all establishments that were engaged in the production of iron and steel, such as blast furnaces, rolling mills, steel works, iron-ore forges, and pig and scrap iron bloomeries, irrespective of the character of their finished products, are combined and presented as a total for the manufacture of iron and steel. Therefore the totals given in the special report (Part III) will not agree with the totals for "Iron and steel" shown in the general tables (Part I).

The totals for "Chemicals and allied products" given in the special report (in Part III) will not agree with the totals for "Chemicals" in the general tables (in Part I), because the special report includes establishments shown in the general tables under the classes of "Dyestuffs and extracts", "Fertilizers", "Gunpowder", "High explosives", "Paints", and "Varnish".

Apparent discrepancies will also appear in comparing the amounts for the different items of some of the industries shown in Part III with the amounts given for apparently the same items in the general tables (in Part I). This is due to the fact that the reports in Part III present the statistics in a detailed form characteristic of the industry treated, but in order to show totals for the same items for all industries it is necessary to make combinations of a different character from those adopted in the special reports.

In the special report on "Forest Industries" (in Part III), the total for "Live assets" in "Lumber mills and saw mills" is given as $172,260,253. In the general tables (in Part I) the live assets for the same establishments under the classification of "Lumber and other mill products from logs or bolts" is given as $202,014,080, the total in the general tables exceeding that in the special report by $29,753,827. This is due to the fact that in the special report the capital invested in "Logging" and that invested in "Mill plant" are shown separately. Two of the classes of investment assigned to "Logging", namely, "Forest products not delivered at mill" and "All other capital invested in logging", amounting to $29,753,827, should be considered as live assets when presenting the total capital in the form of presentation adopted for the general tables. A similar discrepancy appears for the cost of materials shown for this industry in the two sets of tables, the cost of materials in the general tables exceeding that in the special report by $45,103,964. In the special report this amount is shown as paid for the keep of animals and wages for employés engaged in logging, these expenses forming a part of the cost of materials as delivered at the mill.

There are 369 classes of industry shown in the general tables. The contributions of the respective states and territories to the grand total for each industry are given in Table 5. In considering these tables it must be remembered that the classes of industry only characterize the principal products of the establishments reporting; also that only the products of distinct establishments are included. "Bread and other bakery products", for instance, is reported for 45 states and territories, but it does not follow that bread is not also made in the remaining 6 states and territories, in private families, hotels, and restaurants, only that it is not made in distinct establishments, such as bakeries. The ginning of cotton is reported by 1,637 establishments, located in 13 states. These establishments, however, are only the public ginneries, and do not include private gins operated for the benefit of single plantations. It also frequently happens that cotton is ginned by a grist or lumber mill, and if in such cases the product of the grist or lumber mill exceeds in value that of the gin, the report is assigned to one of the classes of the lumber industry or to "Flouring and grist mill products".

The territorial diffusion of the establishments engaged in each of the different classes of industry is shown by Table 5. The greater diffusion appears for industries that may be classed as neighborhood industries, such as "Blacksmithing and wheelwrighting", which appears in 49 states and territories; "Clothing, men's, custom work", in 46; "Clothing, women's, dressmaking", in 45; "Furniture, cabinetmaking, repairing and upholstering", in 48, and "Printing and publishing, book and job", in 42.

The industry reporting the largest value of product is "Flouring and grist mill products", for which the product amounts to $513,971,474, and the industry appears in 48 states and territories. There are 40 classes of industry reported in 1890 for which the product exceeds $60,000,000. The aggregate product for these industries amounts to $6,500,155,538, or 69.35 per cent of the total product for the United States. The distribution of the establishments engaged in 10 of the principal industries according to value of product, and the contribution of the product of the 5 leading states in each industry to the total product of the industry, is shown by the following statement:

NUMBER OF ESTABLISHMENTS, VALUE OF PRODUCT, AND NUMBER OF STATES FOR WHICH 10 SELECTED INDUSTRIES ARE REPORTED, WITH PERCENTAGE THAT PRODUCT SHOWN FOR 5 PRINCIPAL STATES IN EACH INDUSTRY IS OF THE TOTAL PRODUCT FOR THE INDUSTRY: 1890.

Table 1, presenting totals for the different states and territories for 1850, 1860, 1870, 1880, and 1890, and Table 2, showing totals for specified industries as reported in 1880 and in 1890, are the only general tables in this report in which the statistics for 1890 are placed in comparison with those published at previous censuses. In considering the totals presented in these tables, the differences in the scope of the inquiry previously referred to, and also the changes in the form of the questions respecting capital, employés and wages, materials, and product, referred to in the following pages, should be borne in mind. These two tables can only be accepted as presenting the totals for all classes of manufacturing and mechanical industries as reported at the different censuses. The increase during the different decades is more accurately indicated by the following summary, which shows the totals for 1850, 1860, 1870, 1880, and 1890, with the percentage of increase for the different items during each period of 10 years. In this statement the values for 1870 have been reduced to a gold basis; the figures for 1880 have been modified by the inclusion of petroleum refining and the elimination of certain data duplicated under the head of "Mixed textiles", while the industries enumerated in 1890 but omitted in 1880 have been excluded from the totals for 1890.

[a] Not reported prior to 1890.

[b] Includes 461,009 officers, firm members, and clerks, and their wages, amounting to $381,988,208. These classes of employés were not reported separately at prior censuses.

The percentages of increase in each decade for the items presented in the above statement, also for the net value of product, that is, the value of product after deducting the cost of materials used, are summarized in the following statement, the data on which the computations for 1870, 1880, and 1890, shown in this statement, are based having been modified in the same manner as in the preceding statement:

PERCENTAGES OF INCREASE IN MANUFACTURES: 1850 TO 1890.

PERIODS.	Number of establishments reporting.	Capital.	Average number of employes.	Total wages.	Cost of materials used.	Gross value of product.	Net value of product.
1850 to 1860	14.15	89.38	37.01	60.03	85.83	85.05	84.11

1860 to 1890	129.75	507.95	241.42	473.20	386.76	380.25	372.38
1870 to 1890	27.96	262.30	117.96	250.02	152.24	167.49	189.25

The large percentage of increase for 1890 over 1880 shown in the preceding statements, especially in the item of wages, is probably due in part to the change in the form of inquiry, to which reference is made in the remarks on employés and wages.

The absolute and the relative growth of the manufacturing industries in the different states and territories are indicated by the statement following. This statement shows the rank of each state and territory from 1850 to 1890, inclusive, in gross value and in net value of products (the net value is the value of products less the cost of materials), average number of employés, and total wages. The totals are as published for the different censuses. The values for 1870 have not been reduced here to a gold basis, nor have the figures for 1880 and 1890 been modified, as in preceding statements.

The greatest advance in the relative rank both according to gross value and according to net value of products is shown for Minnesota, which has advanced from the thirty-sixth place in gross value and thirty-fifth in net value of products in 1850 to the thirteenth and fourteenth places, respectively, in 1890. The same state also shows the greatest advance in the number of employés and in the amount paid for wages. New York uniformly ranks first in each of the items. Massachusetts, which was second in 1850, fell to the third place in 1860, and to the fourth place in gross value of products in 1890, but continues to hold the third place in the other items. Pennsylvania has held the second place in each of the items since 1860, and Illinois takes the third place in gross value of products in 1890.

At the census of 1880 internal revenue taxes were in many instances included in the cost of materials, while they are reported as miscellaneous expenses in 1890. This has some effect on the changes in the rank of the respective states in net value of products, especially those in which the liquor industries predominate.

In the following statement the general statistics of manufactures for 1890 are shown, with the states and territories arranged by geographical divisions:

The percentages that the totals for each geographical group are of the total for the United States are shown in the following statement:

PERCENTAGES TOTALS FOR EACH GEOGRAPHICAL DIVISION ARE OF TOTAL MANUFACTURES FOR UNITED STATES: 1890.

GEOGRAPHICAL DIVISIONS.	PERCENTAGES OF TOTAL FOR UNITED STATES.
	Number of establishments reporting.	Capital.	Miscellaneous expenses.	Average number of employés.	Total wages.	Cost of materials used.	Value of products.
The United States	100.00	100.00	100.00	100.00	100.00	100.00	100.00
North Atlantic	45.81	54.38	49.84	53.96	56.22	50.89	52.25

Western	3.93	3.93	3.22	3.22	4.17	3.73	3.85

In 1850, 8 of the first 10 states according to gross value of product were eastern states, while in 1890 only 5 of the eastern states were found among the first 10, the remaining places having been taken by western states. In 1850 the gross value of products reported for the states in the North and South Atlantic divisions was 79.19 per cent of the total product for the United States. In 1860 they reported 72.16 per cent; in 1870, 68.43 per cent; in 1880, 64.56 per cent, and in 1890, 57.96 per cent. This steady decrease in the proportion of the total product of the United States contributed by the North and South Atlantic divisions indicates the gradual movement of the center of manufactures from east to west. By a rough calculation, based on the gross value of products, the center of manufactures at the several censuses was as follows:

LATITUDE AND LONGITUDE.	1850	1860	1870	1880	1890
Latitude west	40° 41′ 42″	40° 33′ 01″	40° 47′ 13″	40° 50′ 09″	40° 42′ 22″
Longitude north	77 25 09	79 18 50	79 25 58	79 53 00	81 33 37

The center in 1850 was 0.5 mile east, 6 miles north of Mifflintown, Pa.; in 1860, 5.5 miles west, 6.5 miles south of Indiana, Pa.; in 1870, 6 miles east, 3.75 miles south of Kittanning, Pa.; in 1880, 2 miles east, 2 miles south of Butler, Pa.; and in 1890, 8.5 miles west, 7 miles south of Canton, Ohio.

CAPITAL.

The amount of capital reported as invested in the manufacturing and mechanical industries in the United States at the census of 1880 was $2,790,272,606; the value of products being $5,369,579,191, it appeared that each $100 of the value of products required the employment of $51.96 of capital. At the census of 1890, $6,525,156,486 was reported as capital and the value of products as $9,372,437,283, each $100 of products requiring $69.62 of capital.

In commenting on the statistics of capital invested in manufactures at the census of 1880, Hon. Francis A. Walker remarked as follows:

> The statistics of capital invested in manufactures, as obtained by a popular canvass, in which the statements of individual proprietors are necessarily accepted, and indeed are by the law intended to be accepted, are always likely to be partial and defective far beyond the limit of error which pertains to other classes of statistics derived from the manufacturing schedule. The liability to error in this respect inheres in the very nature of the subject and is probably ineradicable. * * *
> A host of illustrations might be offered, showing the hopelessness of securing anything like complete and accurate returns of capital invested. Take a single class of difficulties: here are 2 shoe factories in the same town, each employing 200 workmen. In one case the manufacturer owns the building in which his operations are carried on, and reports his capital at $75,000, being the value of his stock and machinery plus the value of the building; the other reports his capital at $25,000, being the value of stock and machinery only. The latter would not, and could not rightfully, report the value of the building as a part of his capital, for it does not belong to him. Yet that building is devoted to manufacturing uses, and any summary of the manufacturing capital of the country which omits consideration of it is in so far defective.

In order to overcome, as far as practicable, the difficulties referred to in the preceding extract, the inquiry used at the Eleventh Census relating to capital contained a series of questions designed to obtain a complete statement for each establishment of all the property or assets used in the business strictly pertaining to manufacturing, whether such property was owned, borrowed, or hired. These questions were as follows:

Capital invested (both owned and borrowed):
- Value of plant (the value should be estimated at what the works would cost in 1890 if then to be erected, with such allowance for depreciation as may be suitable in the individual case).
  - Land ..... $_____
  - Buildings ..... _____
  - Machinery, tools, and implements ..... _____
  - Total ..... $_____

Live capital:
- Raw materials on hand ..... $_____
- Stock in process and finished products on hand ..... _____
- Cash on hand, bills receivable, unsettled ledger accounts and sundries not included in any of the foregoing items ..... _____
- Total ..... $_____

Average annual allowance since June 1, 1880, for depreciation of buildings and machinery (a) ..... _____

The inquiry concerning capital used at the Tenth Census was not uniform; it was generally as follows: "Capital (real and personal) invested in the business". In the schedule for some of the principal industries a separate statement was required concerning the value of land and buildings and other form of investment. While the questions of 1880 apparently cover the same ground as the more detailed questions of 1890, it becomes evident upon an inspection of the data obtained at the former census that they are incomplete, and that materials on hand, goods in process of manufacture, and other items were, to some extent, overlooked.

The questions used at the Eleventh Census did not call specifically for the value of hired property, but the amount paid for tenancy was called for and the value of hired property may be estimated upon the basis of the amount reported as paid for rent. The value of hired property is not shown in the general tables (in Part I), but is given for the 165 principal cities, also for selected industries in Parts II and III. The value of hired property in the 165 cities is given as $833,173,008, and for the country exclusive of the cities it is estimated at $323,052,049, making a total of $1,156,225,057. Adding this to the "total capital, direct investment", gives an aggregate capital of $7,681,381,543 for the United States, of which hired property forms 15.05 per cent. Omitting the value of hired property, the average capital per establishment for all classes of manufacturing and mechanical industries at the Eleventh Census was $18,359, as compared with $10,992 at the Tenth Census. Including the value of hired property in 1890, the average capital per establishment is found to be $21,612, and each $100 of product to require, on an average, $81.96 of capital.

Borrowed cash is also included in the capital reported at the census of 1890, but it is impossible to state in which of the different items it is included, as the schedule of inquiry did not require such a statement. The amount can be estimated by a computation based on the amount of interest reported as paid. Considering 5 per cent as the average rate of interest, the figures indicate that cash to the amount of $823,874,916, or 12.63 per cent of the "capital, direct investment", is borrowed, the average amount of borrowed capital for each establishment being $2,318.

In the presentation of capital for all classes of manufactures in the general tables following (Part I), the different items enumerated under "Live capital" have been consolidated, and the total has been shown under the caption of "Live assets". In Table 8, Part I, also in the statistics of cities and reports on selected industries in Parts II and III, the amounts are shown for each of the different items enumerated under "Live capital".

The total capital reported as invested in manufactures in 1880 was $2,790,272,606, an increase of $3,734,883,880, or 133.85 per cent, as compared with $6,525,156,486 in 1890. Excluding from 1890 the capital reported for the industries previously mentioned as not having been reported in 1880, and modifying the figures for 1880 by eliminating the duplications in the data for "Mixed textiles" and including "Petroleum refining", the amount of capital appears to have increased 120.78 per cent, as compared with an increase of 69.31 per cent in the value of product. Neither of these percentages, however, can be accepted as indicating the exact increase in capital. The increase was probably somewhat in excess of that of value of products, allowance being necessary in measuring the relations of the two items for the fall in values. As stated in the reports of the Tenth Census, the full amount of capital was not ascertained, nor was it possible to estimate the amount by which the figures fall short of the true value.

For reasons previously given, the difference between the capital reported at the census of 1880 and that reported in 1890 should not be considered as the exact increase during the decade.

a The data furnished in the individual reports relating to depreciation of manufacturing plants were not sufficient to form a basis for correct computations and therefore are omitted from this report.

The following statement, however, shows the number of establishments, total capital, average capital per establishment, and the average amount of capital required for a product valued at $100, for 25 selected industries as reported at the censuses of 1880 and 1890:

b In 1890 includes 13,591 establishments reported as "Clothing, men's, custom work and repairing"; 4,867 as "Clothing, men's, factory product", and 200 as "Clothing, men's, factory product, buttonholes".

c In 1880 an establishment engaged in both tanning and currying leather was counted as 2 distinct establishments.

d In 1890 includes 249 establishments reported as "Sausage"; 611 as "Slaughtering and meat packing, wholesale", and 507 as "Slaughtering, wholesale, not including meat packing".

MISCELLANEOUS EXPENSES.

Previous census reports show no items entering into the cost of manufacture other than the amounts paid for wages and materials. The present inquiry was designed to cover, as far as possible, the entire cost of production. With this end in view, a series of questions pertaining to miscellaneous expenses was included in the schedule. The form of these questions was as follows:

Miscellaneous items:

Amount paid for rent, power, and heat ..... $_____
Amount paid for taxes ..... $_____
Amount paid for insurance ..... $_____
Amount paid for repairs, ordinary, of buildings and machinery ..... $_____
Amount paid to contractors ..... $_____
Amount paid for interest on cash used in the business ..... $_____
Amount paid for all sundries (not reported in any of the foregoing items) $_____
Total ..... $_____

Only the totals of the amounts reported for the items enumerated in the above questions are presented in Tables 2, 3, 4, 5, and 6. In general Table 8, Part I, also in Part II, statistics of cities, and in the special reports in Part III, the totals for each item are given.

The questions in regard to miscellaneous expenses were generally answered, though, in some cases, where a mercantile, mining, or other industry was conducted in connection with manufacturing, accurate reports were not obtained, the manufacturers claiming it was impossible to determine what part of the amount paid for taxes, interest on cash used in the business, and other sundry expenditures should be charged to each of the several branches of industry. Therefore the amounts reported for the different items by some establishments include not only the expenses connected with manufacturing, but also similar data properly chargeable to classes of industry not covered by this report. The total amount reported as paid for miscellaneous expenses is $631,225,035, and represents 7.82 per cent of the total cost of manufacture. The amount includes internal revenue tax, which was probably included in the cost of materials at previous censuses.

The amount paid contractors, which is included in the total of miscellaneous expenses, if reported at previous censuses was included in the amounts shown for wages. The total for this item is not given for the United States, but it is probable that the $27,287,929 shown for the 165 principal cities represents, practically, the entire amount paid to independent contractors by the establishments reporting.

The proportion expended for miscellaneous expenses in a product of a given value in different states and industries is shown in the remarks on "Products".

EMPLOYÉS AND WAGES.

The form of inquiry respecting employés and wages used at the Eleventh Census was as follows:

LABOR AND WAGES.

NOTE.—Hands employed on piecework and their earnings should be separately reported below. Wages paid should include board or rent furnished as part compensation.

In addition to the above questions, the schedules designed for a few selected industries, such as glass and refining of petroleum, contained questions concerning the daily wages of different classes of employés.

The inquiry concerning employés and wages used at the Tenth Census was not uniform; the majority of the schedules called only for the "greatest number of hands employed at any one time during the year", also "the average number of hands employed, males above 16 years, females above 15 years, and children and youths, and the total wages paid", without designating the different classes of employés. The schedules for some selected industries contained additional questions concerning the number of "officers and clerks", "operatives, mechanics, watchmen, and laborers". It is believed the questions adopted at the Eleventh Census have more fully developed the true average number of employés and the total amount paid in wages; they have obtained a more complete return of the officers, firm members, and clerks and their salaries than was reported at previous censuses. The number of this class of wage earners included in the reports of previous censuses, with the exception of two or three special inquiries at the census of 1880, were only those reported when the manufacturer considered that they should be included in answer to a general question as to the number of employés and the total amount of wages.

The questions used in 1880 tended to obtain a number of employés that would be in excess of the true average, while it is believed the questions used in 1890 have obtained, as nearly as possible, the average number. The questions for 1890 also tended to obtain a large amount of wages as compared with 1880, thus making a comparison of the average annual earnings for all classes of employés as obtained from the reports of the two censuses impracticable.

The statistics concerning employés and wages will not be given in the detailed form reported, except in the case of selected industries. With the exception of comparative tables and those for selected industries, the statistics show the average number of males above 16 years, females above 15 years, and children, respectively, and the total wages, by classes, of officers, firm members, and clerks; operatives, including skilled and unskilled workmen, and pieceworkers. Table 8, giving detailed statistics for 8 selected industries, shows for each industry the average number of males above 16 years, females above 15 years, and children, and total wages, by classes, and gives the average weekly earnings per employé for each class, the average number of employés at specified weekly rates of wages, and the average number of hours in an ordinary day of labor. In making comparisons of employés at specified weekly rates of wages with the average weekly earnings per employé, it must be remembered that it is not practicable to obtain true average weekly earnings from a table of weekly rates, due in part to the fact that the terms of employment vary for employés reported at the respective rates.

The method used to compute the average weekly earnings shown for selected industries is as follows: the number of weeks reported by individual establishments as their term of operation is multiplied by the average number of employés in each class; the product is the number of weeks required for 1 employé to perform the labor. The sum of these products of individual establishments divided into the sum of wages for the same establishments produces the true average weekly earnings per employé.

The average number of employés is the number necessary to be continually employed during the time the establishment is reported as being in operation in the census year to perform the work of a varying number employed.

While changes in the form and scope of the inquiry of 1890 as compared with that used at previous censuses will not permit of the use of the totals to ascertain the percentage of gain, the statistics can be used to show the changes in the proportion of males, females, and children employed in manufactures. The following statement shows the total number of employés and the number and percentage of males, females, and children reported at the censuses of 1850 to 1890, inclusive:

TOTAL EMPLOYÉS AND NUMBER AND PERCENTAGE OF MALES, FEMALES, AND CHILDREN: 1850 TO 1890.

a Not reported.

b The duplications occurring in "Mixed textiles" in 1880 have been eliminated and the figures for "petroleum refining" added, and the industries not reported in 1880 have been excluded from the totals for 1890.

The following statement shows the percentage of increase in the aggregate number of employés, also in the number of males, females, and children, reported at the different censuses. In making the computations shown in this statement the modified figures for 1880 and 1890 given in the preceding statement have been used.

PER CENT OF INCREASE IN TOTAL EMPLOYÉS AND IN NUMBER OF MALES, FEMALES, AND CHILDREN: 1850 TO 1890.

YEARS.	Total employés.	Males.	Females.	Children.
1850 to 1860	37.01	42.29	19.91	(a)
1860 to 1870	56.64	55.29	19.52	(a)
1870 to 1880	31.49	24.51	58.21	54.39
1880 to 1890	65.77	78.93	47.91	b32.25

a Not reported. b

From the preceding statements it appears that while the absolute number of females reported at the different censuses as employed in manufactures has increased, the per cent has decreased; the decrease being due to the large absolute and relative increase in the number of male employés.

The two following statements show the percentage the males above 16 years, females above 15 years, and children are of the total employés reported in 1880 and 1890 for each of 15 states reporting a large number of females, and also for 15 states reporting a small number of females in 1880. In these statements the modified totals for 1880 and 1890 have been used.

a In 1880 includes 4,843 establishments reported as "Furniture"; also 781 establishments reported as "Upholstering". In 1890 includes 4,054 establishments reported as "Furniture, cabinetmaking, repairing and upholstering"; also 1,579 establishments reported as "Furniture, factory product".

From the four preceding statements it appears—

First. That the absolute number of females employed in manufacturing establishments has almost invariably increased, both in the industries and in the states for which either a large or small proportion of females were reported in 1880.

Second. That the relative number of females has increased in the states and industries that reported a small number of females in 1880, and that the relative decrease in the number of females reported for the states and industries showing a large number of females in 1880 is caused by the large absolute and relative increase in the number of male employés.

Third. That the largest percentage of increase in female employés is found in the industries and in the states that reported a small proportion of females in 1880.

Fourth. That the per cent of children employed in manufacturing establishments has decreased in all sections and in all industries, and that the absolute number of children employed has increased only in those states that employed a small number of females and children in 1880.

Referring to the presentation of the statistics of employés and wages adopted for the general tables, the following statement shows for the United States the average number and total wages of all employés and the average number and the wages of males, females, and children, with the percentages, by classes:

From the two preceding statements it appears that the male employés are 79.47 per cent of the total employés and receive 88.97 per cent of the aggregate wages. The females are 17.96 per cent of the total employés and they receive 10.30 per cent of the aggregate wages. The male operatives are 61.15 per cent of the total and they receive 62.91 per cent of the aggregate wages. The female operatives are 10.73 per cent of the total and they receive 6.10 per cent of the aggregate wages. The male operatives are 82.53 per cent of all operatives and they receive 90.32 per cent of the aggregate wages of operatives, while the female operatives are 14.48 per cent of the total and they receive 8.76 per cent of the aggregate wages of operatives.

The average annual earnings per employé, as obtained from the totals for 1880, was $346.91, while the average obtained for all employés in 1890 was $484.49, and for the employés exclusive of the officers, firm members, and clerks, $444.83. Owing to the differences in the form and the scope of the inquiry of 1890, as compared with that of 1880, previously referred to, neither of these average annual earnings for 1890 should be accepted as the exact increase during the decade.

While the number of employés reported for 1890 is, as nearly as possible, the true average number employed during the year, the result obtained by using this number as a divisor into the total wages must not be accepted as the actual annual wages per employé for any particular class or occupation. The total number of employés and the total wages include not only officers, firm members, and clerks and their salaries, but the number and wages of males and females, apprentices, children, and adults, employés working the entire year, and those engaged for only short periods, also pieceworkers. The average annual earnings is also affected by the difference in the proportions of these different classes of employés, as well as by the conditions prevailing in the different industries and in different localities, some industries requiring a larger proportion of skilled and high-paid employés than others. With these cautions in accepting the figures, the following statement is presented, which shows for the United States the average annual earnings for all employés for each class, and for the males, females, and children in each class:

Apparent inconsistencies in the averages given in the above statement may be explained by reference to general Table 6, which shows the number and the wages of the different classes of employés in the different industries reported for each state and territory. For instance, the average annual earnings of children (pieceworkers) in Kansas is reported as $18. It appears, however, that there were only 278 children (pieceworkers) reported for the state, and of this number 253 are shown for "Fruits and vegetables, canning and preserving". The establishments engaged in this industry were in operation only a few months during the year, making the average earnings in this occupation for the entire year exceedingly low.

The statement following shows the average annual earnings per employé for all classes and for males above 16 years, females above 15 years, and children in each of the different classes of industry in which there were 3 or more establishments reported. In considering the averages given in this statement reference should be made to general Table 5 to ascertain the number and wages of the different classes of employés for a given industry in the different states and territories.

MATERIALS.

The cost shown for materials is the cost at the place of consumption of all materials used during the year. With the exception of the schedules on which a few selected industries were reported at the census of 1880, the question concerning materials was as follows: "Value of materials used (including mill supplies and fuel)". At the census of 1890 the schedule contained separate questions as to the kind, quantity, and cost of the "Principal materials", and the cost of "Mill supplies", "Fuel", and "All other materials". The amounts paid for rent of power and heat are also included under this head in 1890. It is probable that some of the items included in the cost of materials at the census of 1880 are included in "Miscellaneous expenses" in the inquiry of 1890. This is especially true of the item of internal revenue taxes reported in industries such as liquors, malt and distilled, and tobacco.

The propriety of including as materials the amounts expended for mill supplies, fuel, and for rent of power and heat in some industries may be questioned, but these articles are so closely allied with other materials in many industries that it is impossible to make a separation, especially in view of the manner in which the information was reported by the manufacturers.

The proportion expended for materials in manufacturing a product of a given value in different states and industries, and the percentage of the cost of materials of the total cost of manufacture, also the relation existing between the cost of materials and the value of products, are shown in the remarks on "Products".

PRODUCTS.

The value given under the head of products is the value at the factory, not including any allowance for commissions or expenses of selling. With the exception of the schedules on which a few selected industries were reported at the census of 1880, the question concerning the value of products was as follows: "Value of products (including jobbing and repairing)". The question used at the Eleventh Census required a separate statement as to the quantity and value of the "Principal products" and the value of "All other products, including amounts received for custom work and repairing".

As previously stated, the value of the product is the value at the factory; therefore these statistics can not be taken as showing the profit or earnings of capital, because many items of expense enter into the mercantile portion of the business which is not within the scope of the census inquiry. The inquiry conducted by this office was intended to ascertain only the relations which capital, wages, cost of materials, and miscellaneous expenses bear to the value at the works of the products of manufacturing industry.

The total value of products for 1890 amounts to $9,372,437,283; but this amount must not be accepted as the value added to the cost of raw materials by manufacturing processes. The product of one industry frequently becomes the material for another; thus the original value of the material, as purchased by the first manufacturer, is duplicated many times before the material reaches a finished state and is delivered to the consumer. It is impossible to arrive at the exact extent of this duplication, but the value added to the cost of the materials as they first entered a factory is fairly indicated by deducting from the value of products given above the total cost of materials, reported as amounting to $5,162,044,076. This will leave $4,210,393,207 as the value of products, which may be designated the "Net value". This net value of products will appear larger in states where the predominating industries are of a character in which the outlay for labor forms a larger proportion of the cost of manufacture than the outlay for materials. This is indicated by the statement presented on a preceding page, which gives the ranks of the different states and territories in the gross value and the net value of products, number of employés, and total wages. The state of Kansas, for instance, is ranked as number 18 in the gross value of products, 24 in net value, 26 in the number of employés, and 24 in total wages. The high rank of the state in the gross value of products as compared with its rank in the other items is due to the slaughtering and meat packing industry. In this industry the cost of materials forms a large per cent of the value of product. The product reported for slaughtering and meat packing forms 40.55 per cent of the total products for the state. Excluding this industry, Kansas would rank 25 in gross and 26 in net value of products. The difference in the rank of Nebraska in the gross value and its rank in the net value of products is due to the smelting and refining industry, in which the cost of materials also forms a large percentage of the product. Excluding this industry, the state would rank 22 in gross and 25 in net value of products.

The three tables following show, respectively—

1. The general relation between the cost of materials and the value of products in different industries of the same state, which gives the rank of the 6 leading industries, first according to the gross value and then according to the net value of product in each state and territory.

2. The relative size of the establishments in the total for the United States and in the different states and territories, which gives for each state and territory the average capital, number of employés, gross value and net value of product per establishment; also the average gross value and net value of product and average annual earnings per employé. All classes of establishments are included in the totals on which the averages shown in this statement are based. In many establishments no employés other than officers or firm members are reported, and no labor except that of this class of employés enters into the value of the product. Therefore in many establishments, possibly in all, the officers, firm members, and clerks should be considered in computing the average gross value and the average net value of product per employé. To meet any objection to this method the averages are presented: first, including officers, firm members, and clerks in the total employés used as a divisor; second, excluding these classes. In computing the average annual earnings per employé, the officers, firm members, and clerks have been excluded. In considering these average annual earnings, reference should be made to the remarks under "Employés and wages" concerning averages of this character.

3. The size of the average establishment in the different industries, which gives for each of the different classes of industry in which 3 or more establishments were reported averages of the same character as presented in the preceding statement for the different states. From this statement it appears there were 161 industries in which the average gross value of annual product per establishment exceeded $50,000. There were 45,708 establishments reported as engaged in these industries, and their aggregate gross value of products amounted to $5,485,230,802; the establishments being 12.86 per cent in number and the products 84.06 per cent in value of the totals for the United States.

Owing to the changes in the form and in the scope of the inquiry of 1890 as compared with that of 1880, it is not practicable to present comparative statistics that show the exact changes in the size of the average establishment reported at the two censuses.

The following statement, however, gives information of this character for 25 selected industries, as obtained from the reports of the two censuses 1880 and 1890:

AVERAGE CAPITAL, NUMBER OF EMPLOYÉS, AND GROSS AND NET VALUE OF PRODUCT PER ESTABLISHMENT; ALSO AVERAGE CAPITAL FOR A PRODUCT VALUED AT $100, FOR 25 SELECTED INDUSTRIES AS REPORTED IN 1880 AND 1890.

a In 1890 includes 160 establishments reported as "Cheese and butter, urban dairy product", and 4,552 as "Cheese, butter, and condensed milk, factory product".
b In 1890 includes 13,501 establishments reported as "Clothing, men's, custom work and repairing"; 4,867 as "Clothing, men's, factory product", and 200 as "Clothing, men's, factory product, buttonholes".
c In 1880 an establishment engaged in both tanning and currying leather was counted as 2 distinct establishments.
d In 1890 includes 249 establishments reported as "Sausage"; 611 as "Slaughtering and meat packing, wholesale", and 507 as "Slaughtering, wholesale, not including meat packing".

The census inquiry concerning manufactures was designed to obtain from each establishment a statement showing the full value of capital, whether owned, borrowed, or hired, and the total cost of the product manufactured during the census year (excluding allowance for depreciation of plant and interest on capital), and the value placed on the product at the shop or factory. The figures therefore show only the cost of manufacture and the proportion of each item of cost in the total cost.

The following statement shows for each state and territory the average amount of capital and the cost required for a product valued at $100:

a The difference between the cost of manufacturing and the value of product at the place of production does not show the true average profit or earnings for capital, because the cost reported does not include cost for depreciation of plant or mercantile risks.

Apparent inconsistencies in this statement may be explained by reference to general Table 6, which shows the totals for each industry in the different states and territories. For instance, the cost of miscellaneous expenses in Kentucky is relatively larger than in any other state. By reference to Table 6 this is found to be due to the large amount reported as miscellaneous expenses in malt and distilled liquors, which includes internal revenue taxes. In the same way the relatively large cost of materials in Kansas is found to be due to the slaughtering and meat packing industry, in which the cost of material forms a large percentage of the total cost.

The average amount of capital required and cost for a product valued at $100, as obtained from the totals for the different geographical divisions of the states and territories, is shown by the following statement:

a Industries in which less than 3 establishments are reported are grouped, in order to avoid disclosing the operations of individual establishments. These establishments are distributed as follows: fuel, artificial, 2; phonographs and graphophones, 2; racking hose, 1; rubber, vulcanized, 1; sugar and molasses, beet, 2; thread, linen, 2; tinfoil, 2.

In this and in the two preceding statements presenting similar computations for the different states and territories, also for geographical divisions, the value of hired property is not included in the capital. This will account, in part, for the small average capital shown for some industries. In "Clothing, women's, dressmaking", for instance, the average amount of capital required for a product valued at $100 is given as $22.57. A large percentage of the persons engaged in this industry carry on their business in rooms rented for that purpose, and as only the capital owned by the manufacturer is included in the total capital, the aggregate reported for the industry is comparatively small. The amount expended for miscellaneous expenses for a product valued at $100 in "Cars and general shop construction and repairs by steam railroad companies" is given as 7 cents. This small amount is due to the fact that the majority of the railroad companies reported no expenses of a miscellaneous character for their repair shops, materials and wages being the only items of expense reported as charged to this branch. "Miscellaneous expenses" includes internal revenue taxes, therefore the proportion assigned to "Liquors, distilled and malt", is exceptionally large.

In some industries, of which "Cloth, sponging and refinishing", is an example, the amount expended for materials is comparatively small, which is because a number of establishments use only the materials furnished by others. In such instances the value of product is simply the amount received for the labor performed, and the cost of materials only includes the cost of incidental materials, such as soap, oil, chemicals, dye stuffs, thread, needles, and buttons.

General Table 5, giving the different industries by totals for states and territories, will be found of assistance in analyzing the results presented in the above statement.

The sum of the wages, materials, and miscellaneous expenses for the United States amounts to $8,076,485,640; as previously stated, the difference between this amount, shown as cost, and the $9,372,437,283 reported as the value of products, can not be accepted as profit or return to capital. Wages forms 28.27 per cent of the total cost, materials 63.91 per cent, and miscellaneous expenses 7.82 per cent. The percentages that the different items of cost are of the total cost of manufacture vary in the different states and territories. This is shown by the following statement, which shows the cost and the amount and percentage for each item in 6 selected industries in 15 states, by states:

SELECTED INDUSTRIES.

General Table 8 (Part I) gives in a detailed form the statistics for 8 selected industries, presented in alphabetical order, as follows: "Agricultural implements"; "Boots and shoes, factory product"; "Carriages and wagons, factory product"; "Cheese, butter, and condensed milk"; "Flouring and grist mill products"; "Leather, tanned and curried"; "Paper"; "Slaughtering and meat packing". In Table 7 the totals for each of these industries except "Carriages and wagons, factory product" are compared with similar statistics for 1880.

The method of obtaining the average weekly earnings per employé shown in Table 8 is described in the remarks on employés and wages. It must be remembered that the time used in making this calculation is the time which the entire establishment reports as having been in operation during the year, and not the absolute time each employé reported for each class was engaged.

The lack of uniformity on the part of manufacturers in assigning the employés to the two classes, skilled and unskilled, will account for some of the discrepancies between the average earnings for these classes. Numerous other circumstances affecting the average annual and average weekly earnings are explained in the preceding text and in the remarks on the statistics of the 165 principal cities in Part II.

AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS.

The number of establishments reported for "Agricultural implements" has decreased 1,033, or 53.17 per cent, during the 10 years from 1880 to 1890, while the number of employés has increased 2,964, or 7.49 per cent, and the value of products $12,631,165, or 18.40 per cent. The concentration of the industry and the increase in the size of the establishments are indicated by the facts that in 1880 the average establishment employed 20 hands and returned a product valued at $35,327, while in 1890 an average of 47 employés is shown for each establishment, with a product valued at $89,310. In 1880 Ohio reported the greatest number of employés and the largest product for this industry. In 1890 Illinois ranks first, reporting 10,417 employés, with a product valued at $24,609,660.

There are 476 females reported for the industry in 1890, as compared with 73 in 1880, while the number of children decreased from 1,194 in 1880 to 212 in 1890. The average weekly earnings for skilled male operatives during the census year was $10.95, and $7.97 for the unskilled.

The following statement shows the average weekly earnings of skilled and of unskilled male employés reported for this industry in the 5 states reporting the largest number of employés in 1890:

AVERAGE WEEKLY EARNINGS OF SKILLED AND OF UNSKILLED MALE EMPLOYÉS IN 5 SELECTED STATES, AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS: 1890.

The classification of the products for this industry is not the same as that adopted in 1880, the changes being due in part to the different classes of implements reported at the two censuses. The following comparative statement, however, presents the number of the different implements common to the reports of the two censuses:

In preparing the above statement some classes of implements reported separately in 1890 have been combined in order to compare them with a single class in 1880. In considering the quantities presented it must be remembered that decreases in quantity would likely appear in those classes in which great improvements have been made. For instance, the portable steam engine has largely taken the place of horse powers, and steam, sulky, and wheel plows have been substituted for hand plows.

BOOTS AND SHOES, AND LEATHER, TANNED AND CURRIED.

During the decade from 1880 to 1890 the number of establishments reported for "Boots and shoes, factory product" increased 6.28 per cent, the number of employés 25.35 per cent, and the value of product 32.88 per cent. Each establishment in 1880 reported on the average 57 employés and a product valued at $84,763. In 1890, 67 employés are shown on an average for each establishment, and an average product valued at $105,980. The increase in quantity of product for this industry, which, owing to the decline in prices, is a more accurate representation of the actual increase, can be shown with reasonable approach to accuracy. In 1880 the total number of pairs of boots and shoes of all kinds reported was 125,478,511, as compared with 179,409,388 in 1890, being an increase of 42.98 per cent. While in making this calculation the quantity of product represented by the $717,746 reported in 1880 and the $3,489,522 reported in 1890 as the value of products not specified has not been considered, the percentage of increase in quantity exceeds the percentage of increase in value of product by 10.10 per cent.

The different branches of the boot and shoe industry are shown under the following classes: "Boot and shoe cut stock", "Boot and shoe findings", "Boot and shoe uppers", "Boots and shoes, custom work and repairing", "Boots and shoes, factory product", and "Boots and shoes, rubber". Aggregating these classes, there appear 18,369 establishments in 1880 and 23,695 in 1890, an increase of 28.99 per cent; the number of employés has increased from 143,301 to 193,539, or 35.06 per cent; the value of product from $217,093,627 to $298,847,245, or 37.66 per cent.

The following statement shows the average annual earnings per employé for males, females, and children by classes in the total and in each of the 6 branches of the industry:

The average weekly earnings for skilled operatives in the establishments classed as "Boots and shoes, factory product", was: males, $11.09; females, $6.59; children, $3.10. The average weekly earnings for unskilled operatives was: males, $7.25; females, $4.87; children, $2.74.

The principal seat of the industry in both 1880 and 1890 was in Massachusetts, which reported a product valued at $95,900,510 in 1880 and $116,387,900 in 1890, being 57.75 and 52.75 per cent, in the respective years, of the total product for the United States.

In connection with the boot and shoe industry it is pertinent to consider the statistics for the manufacture of leather. This industry is shown under the following classes: "Leather, dressed skins", "Leather, morocco", "Leather, patent and enameled", and "Leather, tanned and curried". Aggregating these classes and similar classes reported for 1880, we obtain for 1880, 5,628 establishments, with 40,282 employés, and a product valued at $200,264,944; and for 1890, 1,787 establishments, with 45,027 employés, and a product valued at $172,136,092. The number of establishments can not be considered as the actual number engaged in the industry in 1880, as an establishment engaged in both the tanning and the currying of leather was counted twice. The increase in the number of employés was 11.78 per cent, while the value of product decreased 14.05 per cent. "Leather, tanned and curried" is the principal branch of this industry, and the statistics for it are given in detail. It frequently happens that both the tanning and the currying of leather, which may be considered as distinct branches of the industry, are carried on by the same establishment, without separate accounts of the expenses or profits of the branches combined in the joint industry. In presenting the statistics for establishments of this character three methods of procedure are possible:

First. To report separately the number of establishments tanning leather, the number of establishments currying leather, and the number of establishments both tanning and currying leather.

Second. To aggregate all the three classes of establishments named and publish the gross number of establishments engaged in the manufacture of leather, with separate totals for such items of expense and product as are peculiar to either branch of the industry.

Third. To effect a separation between the two kinds of work done in the third class of establishments described, and after such separation to add to each of the other classes that which by such analysis is found to belong to it. This was the method adopted at the Ninth and Tenth Censuses.

In the reports of the Eleventh Census the second method has been used. General Tables 7 and 8 (in Part I) show the number of establishments reported for the entire industry in 1890, with corresponding totals for capital, miscellaneous expenses, and employés and wages. The quantities and the cost of materials and the quantities and the values of the different products for the tanning and currying branches of the industry are shown separately.

In 1880 the industry was shown as two distinct classes, "Leather, curried", and "Leather, tanned". These two classes must be combined in order to compare the statistics for the two censuses. This combination accounts for the apparent decrease in the number of establishments. The establishments engaged in this industry are located largely in the rural districts, in which the canvass was conducted by the general enumerators, and, as previously explained, this may account in part for the decreases shown for some of the items reported. From the statement following, however, it appears that the quantities of the products of the tannery have increased, while the quantities of products reported for currying have decreased.

The state reporting the largest value of product in 1880 was Massachusetts, while Pennsylvania reported the largest value in 1890, the product for these states in 1890 forming 15.66 and 28.21 per cent, respectively, of the total product for the United States. The number of hides, sides, and skins reported as used for materials and as tanned and curried in Massachusetts and Pennsylvania at the censuses of 1880 and 1890, and the percentages of increase or decrease, are shown in the following statement:

Notwithstanding the decrease shown for the value of product in tanning and currying, a large increase is reported for the manufacture of the finer grades of leather. Combining the three classes of "Leather, dressed skins", "Leather, morocco", and "Leather, patent and enameled", the value of product shows an increase of 117.50 per cent.

CARRIAGES AND WAGONS.

No totals were published in 1880 with which the statistics for "Carriages and wagons, factory product", shown for 1890, can be compared. The figures for "Carriages and wagons, including custom work and repairing", with which the totals for "Carriages and wagons" published in 1880 are placed in comparison in Table 7, embrace all the establishments included in Table 8, and 4,042 establishments that reported the manufacture of 5 or more vehicles during the census year, but which could not be considered as factories. The total number of completed vehicles of all classes reported as manufactured during the year by the 4,572 establishments classed as factories was 1,369,254. The class of vehicles for which the greatest number was reported is road and other carts, costing under $25, for which 326,708 are shown. The next largest number, 298,851, is reported for farm wagons. In addition to the number of completed vehicles, the table shows the number and value of wheels, axles, springs, and carriage and wagon bodies manufactured for sale to the trade. The average establishment reported 14 employés and a product valued at $22,459.

Ohio shows the greatest value of product. The principal classes of vehicles manufactured in this state are buggies, phaetons, and light carriages. Indiana reports the greatest number (48,961) of farm wagons, and is followed by Wisconsin with 46,931. The greatest number of sleighs and the more expensive classes of private vehicles are reported for New York.

The average weekly earnings for skilled operatives in this industry is as follows: males above 16 years $10.75, females above 15 years $6.19, children $3.60; for unskilled operatives, males above 16 years $7.47, females above 15 years $5.08, children $3.78.

CHEESE, BUTTER, AND CONDENSED MILK.

The increase in the number of establishments reported for "Cheese and butter, factory product", which is the next industry considered in Table 7, was 620. The number of employés has increased 6,466, or 81.82 per cent, while the value of product shows an increase of $34,893,195, or 135.55 per cent. The quantity of cheese manufactured has increased 22,149,704 pounds, or 10.26 per cent, and the quantity of butter 151,863,132 pounds, or 516.16 per cent.

In 1880, on the average, each establishment employed 2 hands and produced a product valued at $6,547, as compared with 3 hands and a product valued at $13,321 in 1890.

In addition to the 4,552 establishments shown in Table 7, reports were received from 160 establishments which were classed as "Cheese and butter, urban dairy product". These establishments report a product valued at $2,050,338, and represent the manufacturing operations of city dairies. It is probable that but few, if any, establishments of this character were reported at the census of 1880. In order, however, to present the entire industry for 1890, such establishments have been consolidated with the totals for the factory product, and the aggregate has been presented in General Table 2 (Part I) in comparison with the totals reported for the industry in 1880. Table 8 shows separately the quantity and the value of the materials and the products pertaining to the manufacture of cheese and the manufacture of butter as distinct industries. The quantities and the values of "Full cream", "Skim", and "All other" cheese are shown separately. Aggregating these different grades of cheese, an average value per pound of 8 cents is obtained for the United States, while the average value per pound for butter is 20 cents. The average value per pound for the different classes of cheese and for butter in the United States and in 6 selected states is shown by the following statement:

AVERAGE VALUE PER POUND OF BUTTER AND OF DIFFERENT CLASSES OF CHEESE REPORTED BY FACTORIES IN THE UNITED STATES AND IN 6 SELECTED STATES, BY STATES: 1890.

In addition to the quantities of cheese and butter reported as a factory product, the reports of the Eleventh Census on agriculture show that 1,024,223,468 pounds of butter and 18,726,818 pounds of cheese were manufactured on farms. Combining these totals with the product of factories makes a total of 1,205,508,384 pounds of butter and 256,761,883 pounds of cheese. Making a similar combination of the totals for 1880, an increase of 49.44 per cent is shown for the quantity of butter and of 5.59 per cent for the quantity of cheese.

The state of New York reports the largest quantity of cheese manufactured in factories during both the census years 1880 and 1890, and also the greatest quantity of butter in 1880. The state of Iowa reported the largest quantity of butter in 1890.

The manufacture of condensed milk was reported for the states of Connecticut, Illinois, Massachusetts, and New York in 1880, and for Illinois, Massachusetts, Michigan, and New York in 1890. The total quantity of condensed milk has increased 24,893,554 pounds, or 191.00 per cent, while the value has increased $2,039,339, or 131.78 per cent. The average value per pound for condensed milk, as obtained from the total for the United States and for the states engaged in this industry in 1880 and 1890, is given in the following statement:

AVERAGE VALUE PER POUND, CONDENSED MILK: 1880 AND 1890.

In 1890 the state of Illinois produced 23,080,064 pounds, or 60.85 per cent of the total quantity of condensed milk reported for the United States.

The average weekly earnings for skilled and unskilled employés, males, females, and children, in the manufacture of cheese, butter, and condensed milk in the United States and in 6 selected states is shown by the following statement:

FLOURING AND GRIST MILL PRODUCTS.

The number of flouring and grist mills reported for 1890 shows a decrease of 5,868, or 31.77 per cent, since 1880. The total value of product, however, increased from $505,185,712 to $513,971,474, or 1.74 per cent. The number of employés increased from 58,407 to 63,481, or 8.69 per cent. The decrease in the number of establishments and the increase in value of product indicate the concentration of the industry in fewer and larger establishments. This is further indicated by the increase in the average size of establishments. On the average each establishment in 1880 reported 2.40 employés and a product of $20,757. In 1890 on the average each establishment reported 3.44 employés and a product of $27,827.

While the quantity of product was not reported for this industry in 1880, the quantity of wheat reported as material in 1890 shows an excess of 80,974,061 bushels, or 26.56 per cent, over that reported in 1880, and the quantity of all other grain an excess of 6,359,157 bushels, or 2.71 per cent. The total of all kinds of grain used as material increased 87,333,218 bushels, or 16.18 per cent.

In 1880 New York reported a product exceeding that of any other state, but Illinois, Indiana, Minnesota, Missouri, and Ohio reported a larger quantity of wheat ground during the year. In 1890 Minnesota reports the product of greatest value, also the greatest quantity of wheat used as material, New York continuing to hold the

In addition to showing the quantities and the values of the different cereals used as material, and the quantities and the values of the different products, Table 8 presents detailed information concerning the number of runs of stone, pairs of rolls, and total daily capacity in bushels. The total daily capacity appears to have increased during the 10 years from 4,730,106 bushels to 5,731,620 bushels.

PAPER.

The number of factories engaged in the manufacture of paper has decreased during the past decade from 692 to 567, or 18.06 per cent, while the number of employés has increased 21.07 per cent and the value of product 34.84 per cent. On the average each establishment in 1880 reported 35 employés and a product of $79,639, and in 1890, 52 employés and a product of $131,057. In addition to the 567 establishments shown for 1890 in Table 8 as engaged in paper manufacture proper, there are reported in the other tables 5 establishments manufacturing "Cardboard", 8 "Leather board", 27 "Paper hangings", 82 "Pulp, wood", and 7 "Pulp, from fiber other than wood". These 5 classes of industry, being so closely allied to the manufacture of paper, should be considered in connection with the totals given in Table 8.

The following statements present the totals for the several branches of the industry and the average annual earnings for males, females, and children in each branch:

In addition to the industries enumerated in the above statements, there are reported in the general tables 796 establishments engaged principally in the manufacture of articles from paper. These establishments are distributed as follows: "Bags, paper", 56; "Boxes, fancy and paper", 588; "Collars and cuffs, paper", 3; "Labels and tags", 47; "Paper goods, not elsewhere specified", 66; "Paper patterns", 27; and "Pulp goods", 9.

SLAUGHTERING AND MEAT PACKING.

"Slaughtering and meat packing" is shown under three subheads, namely, "Slaughtering and meat packing, wholesale", "Slaughtering, wholesale, not including meat packing", and "Sausage". The statistics for "Slaughtering and meat packing, wholesale", and "Slaughtering, wholesale, not including meat packing", are given in detail in Table 8. The data for sausage are presented in the preceding tables in the form adopted for the general report on manufactures. The three branches of the industry for 1890 have been combined in Table 7, and the totals for each state presented in comparison with similar totals for 1880, the entire industry showing an increase of 495 in number of establishments, while the number of employés has increased 79.70 per cent and the value of product 86.01 per cent. The principal seat of the industry is in the state of Illinois. Considering the two branches of the industry for which detailed statistics are given, it appears that while Illinois reports the product of largest value for "Slaughtering and meat packing, wholesale", the product of largest value for "Slaughtering, wholesale, not including meat packing", is shown for the state of New York, a large proportion of the product of that state being sold fresh.

The quantities and values of the principal materials and products in the two branches of the industry are summarized as follows:

Of the different classes of animals slaughtered the greatest number and the greatest value are reported for hogs, of which 22,349,451 were slaughtered during the census year, valued at $207,228,609. Of this number Illinois reported 30.68 per cent. Illinois reported 2,653,414 beeves as slaughtered during the census year, or 48.94 per cent of the total number reported for the United States. New York reports 1,696,529 sheep as having been slaughtered during the census year, which is the largest number reported by any state, and forms 27.46 per cent of the total for the United States.

GENERAL TABLES.

Of the accompanying tables No. 1 presents totals for all classes of manufacturing and mechanical industries in the respective states and territories, as reported at the censuses of 1850, 1860, 1870, 1880, and 1890.

Table 2 shows totals for the United States in the different classes of manufacturing industry, as reported at the censuses of 1880 and 1890.

These tables present the statistics in the form of publication used in 1880. In considering the data presented in Tables 1 and 2, reference should be made to the remarks concerning the differences in the form and the scope of the inquiry of 1890 as compared with inquiries of previous censuses.

Table 3 shows totals for all classes of manufacturing and mechanical industries in the respective states and territories, as reported at the census of 1890.

Table 4 shows totals for the United States by industries.

Table 5 shows totals for the different industries by states and territories.

Table 6 shows totals for the different states and territories by industries and by counties.

Table 7 presents comparative statistics for 7 selected industries.

Table 8 presents detailed statistics for 8 selected industries.

In Tables 2, 4, 5, 6, 7, and 8, when less than 3 establishments are reported for any state, industry, or county, those reported are grouped, in order to avoid disclosing the operations of individual establishments.
